

Welcome to the

Sauk County Farm Connect Guide

This special listing ties together Wisconsin's largest industry - agriculture - with another of its top segments - tourism. Everyone is welcome to shop at these local farms to support our area family farms.

Many consumers are now three to five generations removed from their agricultural roots. This guide aims to help reconnect people with the source of their food. By visiting these unique places and buying their products, consumers have a great opportunity to learn first hand about agriculture today, the environmental care, respect practiced, attention to detail and quality of production.

Sauk County draws strengths from its deep agricultural roots. Enjoy our rich heritage of diverse farms, classic barns, silos, and windmills, and the exceptional beauty of our rural countryside. This publication is brought to by your friends at UW Madison Division of Extension - Sauk County and the Sauk County Land Resources & Environment Department. Food Facts!

Strawberries are the only fruit that wear their seeds on the outside. The average berry is adorned with some 200 of them.

Broccoli has more vitamin C than oranges. One cup of broccoli packs 81mg of vitamin C as compared to the 63mg found in an orange. Clearly, the flavor profiles are completely different, but broccoli also gives you protein, fiber, and a lot less

Rain Gardens

Rain gardens, which are small, shallow areas filled with beautiful native plants, reduce polluted runoff from entering Wisconsin's waters. Creating a rain garden is a great way for homeowners, schools, businesses, churches, and other organizations to help protect our lakes and streams. Rain gardens capture 30% more water than a regular lawn and filter that water into the ground. This reduces the amount of water containing household fertilizers, pesticides, oils, and other contaminants from coming from our roofs, lawns, driveways, or parking lots running into storm sewers. Rain gardens are also a delight to view and are a nice place for birds and butterflies to live.

There are lots of great resources to help you plan and build your own rain garden. Check out the "Rain Gardens: A Guide for Homeowners and Landscapers" from the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) this publication is available online at https://dnr.wisconsin.gov/topic/Stormwater/raingarden
